ALFALFA AND STOCK GROWING.

How to Plant Alfalfa—Notes About Our Home Bonanza.

A correspondent of the Pacific Rural Press, writing from Hanford, California, has the following to say upon a subject which is always of interest to the farmers of this section: "If we only knew what the next few weeks have in store! Parched and dusty fields, a frozen, cloudless sky, and no water from the mountains yet! Our prospects for a grain crop are worse than gloomy, they are hopeless. Two dry years together will be hard on many of the people, because grain is their only crop, but here in the valley of the great rivers, where water can be had for irrigation, we are not entirely dependent on small grain. With our corn, durra, pumpkins, etc., and above all our alfalfa, we can pull through even two dry years. The above by way of preface; I have just now reached the subject I have proposed to myself when I made up my mind to write. Whenever these people make up their minds to quit grain raising, and devote their time and energies to ALFALFA AND STOCK, Prosperity will not only overtake, but overwhelm them. Alas, that so many who can already see it are too poor to realize it, and will have to sell out to others, who will reap the rich rewards. I think that a few facts and some personal experience in regard to the culture and management of alfalfa, will not, at this time, be amiss. Concerning the history of the plant, it is not needful that I should say anything. Suffice it to say that, long, long ago it was known in Greece and Asia Minor. By some means, centuries later, it found its way to Chili, and not many years ago to California. It thrives best on a loose loamy soil, the deeper to the clay or bedrock, the better it is for alfalfa. Where the surface water is within ten feet of the top of the ground, after it is well set, it needs but little irrigation. After two years' growth on ground perfectly suited to it, nothing but a gopher can get the best of it. An occasional flooding gets away with the gopher.

HOW TO PLANT ALFALFA. There are two ways to plant it. In a mild, wet winter, the first is preferable; in a cold, or dry winter, the second. First—Prepare the ground as for wheat or barley. Sow about 40 pounds of wheat or 30 of barley to the acre, and harrow twice; then sow 12 or 15 pounds of alfalfa seed to the acre, and harrow again. The amount of seed sown to the acre will depend on the quality of the seed, and the nature of the soil. In general, the better a soil is adapted to retain moisture the less seed will be required. In the spring, unless the showers are copious and frequent, it will need to be irrigated once or twice. As soon as the grain is of the right age it should be cut for hay. If the season has been favorable the alfalfa will be as thick and tall as the grain. As soon as the hay is taken off is the proper time to irrigate. In six or eight weeks it will be ready to cut again. Second—As early as the water can be had give the ground a good soaking. Plow just as soon as the ground is dry enough. Harrow once or twice, according to the nature of the soil. Sow the seed and go over it with a clod masher if the winter rains are over. Grain can be sown with it as in the other plan if desired. It is not safe to use a clod masher earlier than the middle of April, as a rain on smooth, loose, land makes it bake. Everything considered, the first plan is the best. I sowed some this way last year, and cut it twice, getting about a ton of hay from an acre, and sold an aftermath that would have made three-fourths of a ton to the acre. By the second plan of seeding the first two crops of hay will be mostly weeds.

ALFALFA HAY.

To make good hay, alfalfa should be cut before it gets to blooming freely, then the stalks are less woody, and the leaves will not fall off so badly in handling the hay. The first crop should lie, after being cut, about 24 hours, and if there is any dew, longer, being before raked. It should lie in the mow six or eight hours. After the first cutting the weather here is hot and dry. Consequently subsequent cuttings should be handled somewhat greener. In fact it should be cut just as soon as the bloom begins to appear, and it should not lie in the swath but a few hours. We cut our alfalfa here from three to five times, getting from four to eight tons per acre for the year. Some land will produce 10 or 12 tons per acre per year. From four and one half acres I got, last year, at the first cutting ten tons of hay. I then let it stand until October for seed. But on account of too rank a growth and grasshoppers, it did not do well. I got but 1,100 pounds of seed, when I ought to have had at least two tons of seed. Counting the hay at seven dollars a ton in the stack, and the seed at 10 cents a pound, my net profits were about $20 per acre. If I had cut it four times for hay I would have done even better. I sold the aftermath in December for eight dollars. I would like to say more, but I fear I am making this entirely too long.

[Let us have more at another time. The subject is one of the greatest importance. After disposing of the culture of the plant, let us have something about the stock and how to handle them on Alfalfa.—Eds. Press.]

Lecture on the Pacific Ocean.

Dr. Thomas Antislall lectured on the "Pacific Ocean" the other evening in New York, and, says the Times, proved to the satisfaction of geographers present that there were no warm currents in the Pacific like the Gulf Stream of the Atlantic. The only regularly-defined warm current is the one extending from the equator northward along the Asiatic shore, where it loses itself in the cold currents from the North. This current exists only in warm weather, and is due mainly to the monsoons. A second reason is the formation of the sea bottom. At Lebring Straits it is like the old-fashioned peaked roof of a house, with a depth of 45 fathoms of water covering it on the south side, 40 fathoms on the north, and only 27 fathoms on the ridge of land extending between Asia and America, at the narrowest point between the countries. This ridge, he claims, effectually prevents the flowing of warm currents to the north of sufficient volume to have any effect on the Arctic waters, and so makes an open polar sea impossible. Chief Justice Daly endorsed the theory of the lecturer and expressed himself delighted at this confirmation of his often-expressed theory, in opposition to those of Maury, Kane, Hayes, and other Arctic explorers, with whom he had had frequent controversies on the subject.

Secrecy of Water.

John Guthrie, of the Sonoma Ranch, in Grass Valley, Humboldt county, informs the Silver State that he does not intend to sow over fifty acres of grain this season. This is less than one-fourth of his usual crop, but he says there is very little snow in the mountains above his ranch, and water for irrigating purposes is almost certain to be scarce.

Darkness, reigning along the San Francisco city front since the turning off of the gas from the street lamps, has given a boom to the business of garroting, thieves and criminals generally. During the past week five cases of garroting have occurred within a radius of a few blocks.

Governor Grant, of Colorado, authorizes the statement that he will veto the bill passed at the last Legislature taxing the not output of mines.

Blaine may have been shot at, but as long as he was not hit it is all right. The country can ill afford to lose Blaine yet awhile.

Tom Thumb is a Knight Templar. He is the shortest knight in the world—shorter even than the knight of the 21st of June.—Lowell Courier.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

The April number contains even more than the usual attractive features. The Rev. Moses D. Hoge contributes "What is Presbyterianism?" being No. IV. of "Religious Denominations in the United States;" the editor, Dr. Talmage, has a characteristic article, "Mending the Bible;" Edwin De Leon continues those deeply interesting papers, "The American Pilgrim in Palestine," etc., etc. There are serial and short stories, a large number of very excellent sketches, some admirably written essays, a sermon by Dr. Talmage, "Homesickness," several poems of great merit, a record of important events, Personal Notes and Comments, Editorial Comments, Obituary Notices, etc. The miscellany is most comprehensive, entertaining and instructive; the number, in fact, overflows with good things, and abounds with illustrations. The price is only 25 cents a copy, or $3 a year, post-paid. Address, Mrs. Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

The May number will contain the first of a series of papers by Lieutenant Fred Schwatka, the Arctic explorer, entitled, "Among the Natives of the North."

The daily supply of beef has been reduced from 230 to 170 pounds, and the price also cut down from 9 to 8 cents per pound. The daily supply of flour has been reduced from 200 to 140 pounds per day. The salary of the Foreman of the shoe shop has been reduced from $200 to $150 per month. The hauling has been cut down from $2 to $1 50 per load. Mr. Bell intends to manage the affairs of the Prison with as much care and economy as if it was his own business.

Governatorial Favors.

The impression is out that Governor Adams intends to appoint Mr. Merrill the Commissioner, provided for in the so-called Colorado River Bill, to go to Washington, and also to appoint him Land Agent for the State at Washington, in place of Capt. John Mullen. It is believed that by combining the two positions and emoluments, Mr. Merrill will be reasonably compensated for his services. Of course Mr. Garrard becomes Private Secretary.

Fresh Seeds.

R. E. Queen has just received from the famous seed farms of Jas. Vick, New York, and D. M. Ferry, Michigan, a full line of all the choice and standard vegetable and flower seeds, including grass, clover, and the new rage, the Evergreen millet. His prices are lower than ever, and all who want seeds will find it to their interest to give Queen a call.

Cigars and Tobacco.

At the store of E. Meyer will be found not only the choicest Havana but also the very best of domestic cigars. He keeps all the favorite brands of cigars and every kind of smoking tobacco known to the trade. His stock of pipes and fancy articles is large and fine.

Instructing the Assessor.

The Independent says the Board of Commissioners of Elko county ordered the Assessor to value live stock for taxable purposes, as follows: Stock cattle; $13 per head; steers three years old and over, $18 per head; milch cows, $18 per head; sheep, $1 50 per head.

Those Footprints.

The Tribune says the prehistoric footprints in the State Prison yard are exciting much attention in the scientific world. The most eminent geologists in the United States are speculating at what they are and how they came there.

The best known remedy for coughs and colds is the Infalible Cough Mixture prepared by Osburn & Shoemaker.

UP NORTH.

Attractions of Oregon and Washington Territory.

The Grass Valley Union says "within the past year a number of persons have left Nevada county and sought locations at various points in Oregon and Washington Territory. Among the first emigrants were from Truckee, who settled at or near Spokane Falls, in Eastern Washington, on the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad, and the favorable accounts they sent back in regard to that region has since been the means of inducing others to go. The falls are said to offer one if not the best water power on the Pacific coast, and the place is considered as certain to become a manufacturing-emporium at no distant day. There are fine forests of timber convenient, as well as much good agricultural and grazing land. Other Nevada countians have gone to Walla Walla, which is considered the garden of the Territory. Still others have sought locations on Puget Sound, where there are a number of prosperous towns, all of which hope to be the terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The country about the Sound has great natural wealth in its primeval forests from which lumber is sent to the four quarters of the earth, and the coal fields, which are considered practically inexhaustible. The Sound is a most remarkable body of water, as its great depth admits of the largest class of vessels going in there in safety to receive and discharge cargo. The fisheries of the Sound are also considered of great value. The belief is that a metropolis will grow up on the Sound, by reason of its being the terminal point on the Northern Pacific Railroad, that will hope to become a rival of San Francisco, but this is a hope arising more from enthusiasm than from resources or a situation that will produce such a result. Portland, Oregon, by reason of its remarkable growth and prosperity, has also attracted a number of our people, particularly young men, who believe that they see a field there which is full of promise for industry and enterprise. Nearly all of those who have gone from this county, either to Oregon or Washington have written back encouraging accounts of the business prospects and growth of the country, and this has created quite a disposition on the part of other young men to go in the same direction. Grass Valley has now quite a representation at Portland and at places on the Sound, and others are preparing to follow, and from all that can be learned there will be a number more go to different points in that northern country during the coming Spring and Summer. The governing reason is that the country up there is filling fast with new population, and that the openings for business will be better and more numerous than is offered here at home, where things move along in rather a settled groove to meet the expectations of the young and adventurous. Washington Territory has been filling up fast for several years, not only with people from California but from the East, and as the new overland railroad has been extended from either side of the continent the tide of population has followed in its wake, and it will not be long after the rails are connected that there will be prosperous communities along the whole line. By the opening of this new channel of commerce Oregon and Washington expect to make big strides in population and progress. There are great possibilities for both, and both will become formidable rivals to California."

Family Supplies.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Geo. E. Perkins, dealer in choice family groceries, crockery, tinware, glassware, and almost everything else, having a little of all good things, which he will sell at prices as low as the lowest, as can be readily seen by reading the price list of a few leading articles. Read what is contained in the ad.

The Militia.

The Militia bill passed at the late session of the Legislature allows two infantry companies and one artillery company for Storey county, and one company for every other county in the State.

"Golden Medical Discovery" (words registered as a trade mark) cures all humors from the pimple or eruption to great virulent eating ulcers.
